DIGESTIVE
ENZYMES

Protein is an essential macronutrient for health and wellness, but it only benefits us if it can be fully digested!

Our bodies don't actually absorb protein, they absorb the amino acids building blocks that make up protein. But, our digestive tracts must be able to breakdown the protein before the amino acids can be released.

To make matters worse, undigested protein causes discomfort and distress from gas and bloating!*

Are you experiencing any of these common protein-deficiency symptoms?

- Unexplained Fatigue
- Muscle Weakness
- Loss of Muscle Mass
- Constant Hunger & Sugar Cravings
- Brittle Hair & Nails
- Hormonal Imbalances
- Impaired Immune Function

Stress has a huge impact on our digestion!

Physical and mental stress activates our sympathetic nervous system (fight-or-flight response). Unfortunately, our lives are often filled with stress, so this system never really shuts off. When activated it:

- Stops or slows production of digestive enzymes and stomach acid
- Reduces movement of digestive muscles slowing or speeding food transit time
- Stops or slows mucosal secretion leaving the surface of the GI tract vulnerable to inflammation
- Diverts blood flow away from GI tract to fuel our limbs

How Do We Get Enough Amino Acids If We Are Struggling To Digest Our Proteins?

Protein digestion requires specific enzymes, but not all enzyme groups are created equal. It's essential to have the right type and variety of enzymes included in a protein supplement.

ProHydrolase®

- Quickly break down protein*
- Increase available amino acids in the blood*
